

NortonLifeLock is committed to helping the community in these unprecedented times by helping keep families protected and safer as kids connect online for school and play.

Families already spend a lot of time online, but are spending even more time at home and online today, with online activity higher due to health concerns related to COVID-19, the disease caused by the coronavirus. For kids, that might involve school, homework, socializing, entertainment, and gaming. And with parents working from home or otherwise less able to monitor their kids' online activity, there may be a growing concern about what their kids are doing online.

Because not everything online — or every online activity — is well-suited for kids and teens. What can parents do during this unique time? NortonLifeLock is here to help by giving away 6 months of Norton Family.*

Norton Family provides parents with easy-to-use tools to help protect kids against potential online threats by helping supervise kids' online activity and identify possible issues before they become problems. Whether the concern is what content kids see, what they are searching for, or how much screen time they are getting, Norton Family offers a suite of tools to help monitor, set limits, and block inappropriate content.

With Norton Family, parents can keep an eye on what their kids are doing — and by doing so, teach kids healthier internet safety habits:

- Manage kids' time spent online with screen time limits, so you know when it's time to encourage some offline fun
- Help kids explore the Web more safely by blocking websites and content that aren't age-appropriate
- Monitor kids' search terms, sites visited and overall activity history via an app or web portal<sup>1</sup>
